A great many people want long, heavy hair, but how to get it, that is what puzzles them. The fact is, the hair needs a little help now and then. The roots require feeding.

When the hair is starved, it stops growing, loses its lustre, falls out, turns gray. Ayer's Hair Vigor is a hair-help. It makes the hair grow, stops it from falling, and completely cures dandruff.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

If your hair is fading or turning gray, begin at once with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It will positively restore color to your gray hair, all the full, rich color it had in early life.

As a hair-dressing you will certainly like it, for it keeps the hair soft and glossy and prevents it from splitting at the ends.

Do not be deceived by cheap imitations which will only disappoint you. Make sure that you get the genuine Ayer's Hair Vigor.

CRIMP TRIED TO STEAL A CAPTAIN

Promised Him $20 a Month Job and Continual Luau in His Boarding House.

There is a crimp on the waterfront who will be more careful in the future as to whom he attempts to make desert from a sailing ship. This man has a boarding house for sailors and furnishes crews to vessels needing them. The boarding house is situated down Kakaako way. There are bunks for the boarders. They get their meals at a restaurant down there at an expense of $2.75 a week for the crimp, and a much heavier expense to themselves when they finally get an advance check from the master of the vessel on which the crimp puts them.

The Kakaako crimp boarded the French bark Champigny, which was lying at the Naval wharf. Captain Bogue was standing near the fore's head. The sailor-stealer thought that the skipper was a seaman, and immediately accosted him.

"Say," said the crimp, "are you going out with this ship?"

The skipper did not quite understand, but the man from the shore rattled out:

"Say, youse better chuck this. I can get you a job on a ship that'll pay you $20 a month. That's a hundred and twenty francs in your money, mate. Do you savey? More money than this brig will pay you in ten years. You can stay on shore awhile. You don't need no money. Get your bag and come over the side. Don't wait for your money. I won't charge you anything for board. I get paid by the ship I put you on. I've got a place to keep you; nice room, nice bed, and lots of feed. You'll have a continual luau there; plenty of booze and stuff that helps a sailor like youse and me to enjoy ourself."

The crimp was winded. The skipper did not know what was wanted of him. He called a man who could speak English, and asked him to interpret.

"I can get you a better job," said the crimp; just parliovoo that to him."

The sailor did as directed. The answer of the skipper was that he had a good job.

"Parliovoo that I have a better one—much better—and chance to stay ashore awhile."

This was also "parliovoo."

"Better throw up this old tub of a Dago," said the crimp as he slapped the skipper a friendly greeting over the back.

The skipper did not get angry. The sailor laughed. Then the French Captain asked:

"Are you a ship owner?"

"No," says the crimp; "but I own the whole bloomin' waterfront of this town."

The sailor thought the comedy had gone far enough. He told the crimp that he was speaking to "le capitaine of the French bark Champigny," and that the skipper had his young wife aboard.

The crimp does not know what the word "vamoose" in French sounds like, for he was over the side of that vessel and racing up towards the wharf gate before the skipper had time to utter it. And this explains how the bark managed to leave Honolulu without having any trouble with her crew, as after such an exciting experience the crimp fraternity gave the vessel a wide berth.

Jap Longshoremen Live Cheaply.

Japanese longshoremen probably live as cheaply as any class of laborers in Honolulu. They are employed on the heaviest of stevedoring work, that of ballasting and removing ballast from sailing ships, yet the amount that it takes to keep them is very small. They get board and room in a Japanese hotel for about $7 a month, or about 23 cents a day. The dinners they usually bring to the wharves for the noon hour consists simply of a small pail of rice and a bottle of cold tea, although at times small bits of meat or fish are added to this diet.

The Men With the Anchor Charm.

A familiar figure on the waterfront is a Japanese, a mild mannered little man, who wears loud checked clothing and a small gold anchor as a watch charm. This Jap does a thriving business with sailors. In a red handkerchief he carries a couple of small boxes of photographs of island views, which he sells to sailors at large prices. He takes the views himself, and develops and prints his own pictures, so that the cost is small and his profits correspondingly large.

SUGAR LOADED AT A FAST RATE

Twenty-Two Thousand Bags Put on Steamer in Twelve and One Half Hours.

The Oahu Railway people did some very fast work at their sugar wharf on Tuesday afternoon in conveying on board the steamer Nebraskan 22,000 bags of sugar during twelve and one-half hours' work. The sugar wharf is equipped in such a manner that sugar can be loaded here as fast as at any port in the world.

Only two conveyors were used on Tuesday, and but forty men were at work trucking the sugar from various parts of the warehouses to the conveyors. One thousand seven hundred and sixty bags of sugar went into the vessel every hour, or twenty-nine bags went over the conveyors every minute.

Barkentine S. N. Castle Sailed.

After working overtime in order to get the vessel out before today, the stevedores got 10,400 bags of sugar on board the barkentine S. N. Castle at noon yesterday, and Captain Nilson hauled in his "Beware of the dog" sign from the head of the gangway, and sailed for San Francisco during the afternoon.

Shipping Notes.

The steamer Lehua reports encountering rough weather at Molokai ports.

The bark S. C. Allen will load McBryde plantation sugar at Eleele for San Francisco.

The Mikahala brought 3,250 bags of sugar and other freight from Kauai ports yesterday.

afternoon at 5 o'clock on her regular afternoon at 5 o'clock on her regular run to Kauai ports.

The barks Mohican and S. C. Allen and the schooner Aloha are berthed at the Bishop Estate wharves.

A pile driver was at work yesterday constructing the new dolphin near the end of the Bishop Estate dock.

The bark Willscot is discharging her stone ballast at the Railway wharf preparatory to taking in sugar.

Owing to the fact that a quorum was not present the annual meeting of the Sailors' Home, called to meet yesterday, was postponed.

The gasoline launch Pearl made a trip to port from Pearl Harbor yesterday, and reported that the tug Kaena sustained but little damage through going on the Miowera reef.
